Now that the late President has been re Now that the late President has been removed to Ohio, interest centres once more on the Yorktown Centennial and the progress of preparations for that event. Just now the prominent feature promises to be the musical display. Mr. Charles L. Seigel, of Richmond, Virginia, has that matter in charge. An effective chorus of three hundred male voices is rehearsing daily. The dred male voices is rehearsing daily. The instrumental accompaniment for the choras will be rendered by the Marine band, of this city. The programme is made up mainly of patriotic and popular music, embracing "Hail Columbia," "Star-Spangled Banner," "My country 'tis of thee," "Marsellaise Hynn," and other picces. "The Centennial Ode," written by Paul H. Hayne, of Georgia, and set to music by J. Mosenthal, of New York, will be rendered with grand effect. The words of this composition are as follows:

Gen. Hancock issued orders last Monday detailing the troops from the division of the Atlantic which are to participate. These include a battalion of the First Artillery, five companies, Maj. Frank; a battalion Second Artillery, five companies; a battalion Third Artillery, five companies; a battalion Third Artillery, five companies, Lieuttenant-Colonel De Russey. Of the Teath Infantry there will be three companies from Fort Wayne, and Company F from Fort Porter, commanded by the senior captain. Two light batteries, A of the Second and C of the Third Artillery, are already on the march for Yorktown. As each battery will consist of forty-five enlisted men and three commissioned officers, listed men and three commissioned officers, and each company of infantry of forty enlisted men and three officers and staff officer, the force present from the division of the Atlantic will be about 1,000 strong. The troops will be under the command of Col. Clitz, of the Tenth Infantry, and will live in camp during their stay at Yorktown. The troops will move from their respective posts about October 5.

THE SENATE.

Facts and Speculations About the Organization on October 10.

Now that an extra session of the Senate has been called, current gossip turns upon the assembling of that body and the pros pects of electing a Vice-President. The Democrats will make a desperate effort to secure the office, and will nominate Senator Bayard, while the Republicans, with equal energy, will work for the same end, with Senator Anthony as standard bearer. Not-withstanding the fact that the majority of Senators who left here on the Presidential train last night expressed the belief that the session, called for considering a few nominations only, would be brief, there is reason to expect certain complications with A Deadlock as the Probable Sequel. pects of electing a Vice-President, The

A Deadtock as the Probable Sequel.

For the first time in the history of the country the Senate will meet without a Vice-President or secretary. It is questioned upon whom the duty of calling the Senate to order will devolve, whether the Sergeant-at-arms or clerk. There being no precedent it is a matter of some comment whether or not a protracted debate on this subject will be raised. The rules of the House provide for such an emergency, but mergency, but

No Applicable Rule Exists in the Senate. As to the question of authority, exerything will have to be done by unanimous consent, and, should an issue arise, it will cause delay, for the party in minority will certainly refrain from voting on any objectionable proposition, thus breaking a quorum.

As matters now stand the Democrats are

As matters now stand the Democrats are in the majority. There are three vacant seats on the Republican side of the chamber, one being caused by the death of Senator Burnside, whose successor has not been selected. Senators Miller and Lapham, of New York, have been elected to the other vacancies, but they have not been sworn in. Even if they were sworn in it would Only Make a Tie,

Only Make a Tie,
and the deciding vote would have to be east
by the Vice-President, as at the last session.
The intention of the Democrats to exclude the newly-chosen Republican Senators until after a President protess, has been elected is no longer concealed, and it is just on that point that the fight will occur.
There is a bare possibility that neither side will be fully represented, and that the Democrats will be weakened by the absence of Hill, of Georgia, on account of illness. The votes of Brown, of Georgia, and Davis, of Illinois are also doubtful. Senator Mahone is classed as an Independent, like David Davis, but the chances are that he will act with the Republicans.

There is no mourning drapery in the Senate Chamber, although the House is heavily and tastefully draped. The only thing of the kind in the Senate is a gracefully dropping fold of black muslin hanging over the outside of the main entrance.

BREAKING JAIL. Escape of Prisoners from the Police

An excitement was created in the Police Court this morning by Officer Findley rushing into the court-room and crying out that four prisoners had escaped. A stampede of officers followed, and a crowd was soon running in every direction.

Officer Byrnes was returning to the Police Court with evidence against Frank Murray for second offense of petit larceny, and was just entering Judiciary Square when he saw a man running 'very near him and recognized the prisoner Murray, and took him into custody and brought him back to the court. An examination showed that the insecure window in the rear of the court had been forced by removing two screws, and four prisoners had escaped. The names of the men who broke out were Frank Murray, charged with second offense of grand larceny, having been connected with the robberies of Neumeyer's and Frank Hume's grocery stores. Chubb Jackson, a noted thief, charged with both petit and grand larceny, and Sayler Williams and Edward Kirke, two New York piek-pockets, who stole a pocket-book containing $126 from Henry B. Smith, while that gentleman was looking at the parace yesterday afternoom. Three of the men, Chubb Jackson, Sayler Williams and Edward Kirke, made good their escape.

Sayler Williams and Edward Kirke, made good their escape.

No comment is necessary upon the security of the Police Court when it is remembered that the last important criminal confined in it for burglary broke out by the front door, and the next day three adroit criminals escaped without difficulty or making a particle of noise.

After the Escape.

Judge Spell sent a letter to the Commissions.

After the Escape.

After the Escape.

Judge Snell sent a letter to the Commissioners this afternoon, which states that "an escape of three prisoners at the Police Court this morning, which was effected by a removal of the bars of the north window of the upper wall near the dock, shows that there is immediate necessity for repairs and improvements, and providing additional security for dangerous prisoners. It is suggested that there should be an additional cell for this class of prisoners strong enough to be absolutely safe against escapes of this kind. I hope immediate attention be given, if possible, to this matter, as it is of great importance."
